

Miami Consolidate

JOHN S. COOK

Founder of the banking house of John S. Cook & Company at Goldfield, Nevada, and head of the Old Dominion Commercial Company, bankers at Globe, Arizona, says:

"Only after a thorough examination of the property of the Miami Consolidated Mines Co. by Major J. H. Dockweiler, a mining engineer in whose judgment I place the greatest reliance, and the association in the company of Mr. Harry Lefkovits, have I consented to become the head of the consolidation and to recommend it as meritorious.

"I am not, of course, a mining engineer although having had quite a good deal of practical experience. For the information of those who desire the opinion of an expert mining engineer, I refer to the statement made by Major Dockweiler and printed in connection with this announcement.

"I wish to say that I believe in the future of the Miami Consolidated Mines Company and that investors who participate in the financing of the corporation may rest assured that their interests will be safeguarded and that every penny expended will be used for the welfare of the property."

One of the Biggest Consolidations in Arizona

The Arizona Silver Belt, published at Miami, Arizona, on June 14, 1916, said:

"One of the biggest consolidations of mining claims ever consummated in Arizona was closed yesterday by filing of the deeds to about seventy claims and fractions, owned by twenty-seven different prospectors. The consolidation was effected by W. H. Tunis and H. Ogle Tunis, present City Engineer of Miami, and was subsequently taken over by Harry Lefkovits of Miami and John S. Cook of Globe, for the Miami Consolidated Mines Company, recently organized by them for the purpose of taking over the claims."

Following are the claim owners whose properties are embraced in consolidation:

The Schulze group of sixteen claims, owned by Albert, Frank, Ed, George and Minnie Schulze. Garnet Hodges, two claims. John Kendall, Robert L. Pinyan and the Bradshaw Estate, seven claims. Louis H. Trim, Theodore Phillips and the Palmer Estate, fifteen claims. H. O. Verseth, three claims. George Davis, two claims. Irva Linley, three claims. Irva Linley and George M. Allison, one claim. A. E. Gilmore, one claim. Ralph Holton and George Sidnor, four claims. J. R. Barnett, two claims.
